INTRODUCTION

Dear esteemed Philatelist,

In line with international trends and the evolving priorities of NamPost, our philately department has undergone major changes. As part of this restructuring, the number of stamp issues released by NamPost per year has been reduced to three, consisting of a total of twelve individual stamps.

Here we present our small yet exciting range for 2018: the fascinating evolution of transport and travel in Namibia; another of our many interesting yet often-overlooked bird groups (a release that coincides with the 8th Birdpex exhibition, held in Luxembourg in May 2018); and the grace, agility and beauty of the small wild cats of Namibia.

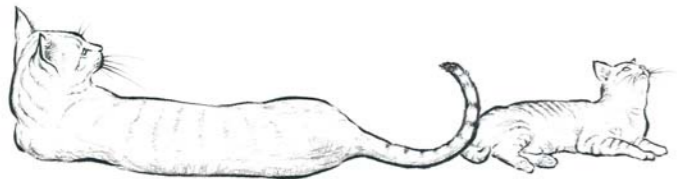

Enjoy collecting them!

OX-WAGON TO AIRPLANE IN NAMIBIA

Transport and travel are fundamental to our modern existence, and have shown an incredible transformation over the last century. The ox-wagon first came to Namibia around two hundred years ago. While oxen, donkeys and horses are still used to pull carts and sand sleds across parts of rural Namibia today, tourists now explore our country's wonderful places in four-wheel-drives and charter airplanes.

FRANCOLINS & SPURFOWL OF NAMIBIA

Francolins are found across most of central and northern Namibia, yet few people know that there are half a dozen different species, each locally common in ideal habitat in different parts of the country. Many are extremely well-camouflaged and often overlooked. Spurfowl is just another name used for some francolin species.

SMALL FELINES OF NAMIBIA

For many millennia, the grace, the agility and the playful nature of cats have fascinated, charmed and inspired us. While Namibia's large cats – the lion, the leopard and the cheetah – are universally celebrated and admired, our four small felines are known mostly to farmers and conservationists.
