

NEWS IN THIS ISSUE:

- >> Changes to Philately Department
- >> From Ox-Wagon to Airplane in Namibia

Dear Valued Customer,

In line with international trends and the evolving priorities of NamPost, our philately department has undergone major changes. As part of this restructuring, the number of stamp issues released by NamPost per year has been reduced to three for 2018, consisting of a total of twelve individual stamps.

Here we present our first issue for the year, focussing on the evolution of transport in Namibia. It is the second stamp series designed for NamPost by upcoming artists Elke le Roux, with artworks painted in her own, very recognisable style.

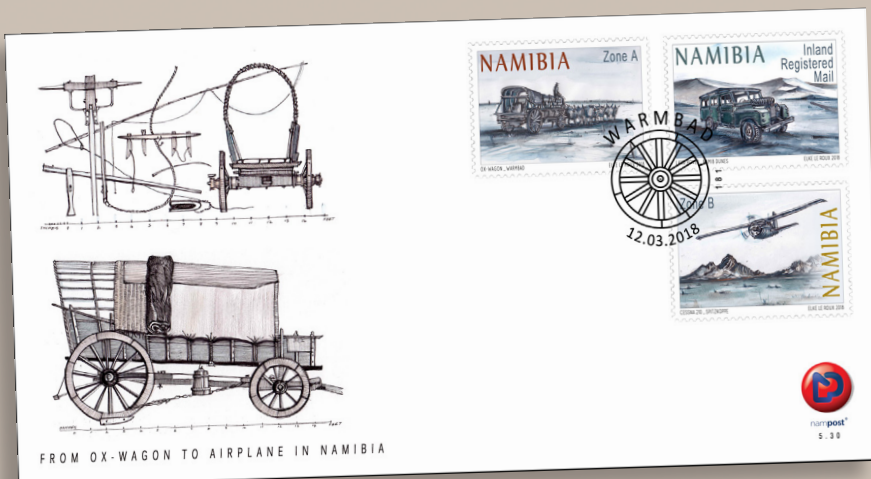

Sincerely,
 Hannelie Maasdorp

DID YOU KNOW?

Modern high-tech has enabled craft that send people into space, yet basic, cost-effective modes of transport such as oxen pulling a simple cart continue to be used in remoter rural areas around the world. Namibia is no exception. While the wooden-wheeled wagons used in traditional ox-wagons a century ago have been replaced by more modern materials, oxen still pull wagons (as well as sand sleds and agricultural implements) in many parts of Namibia.
